Billiards

Rules

In Billiards, players must use their cues to hit the cue ball.

Rules Cont.

Initially, all balls are organized in a triangular formation on the table. When a player hit the cue ball into this triangle of balls, it's called the break.

Rules Cont.

If no balls enter any of the pockets following the break, the next player may take a turn. They are allowed to hit any of the balls in (except for the 8 ball).

Rules Cont.

If the break lands at least one ball in a pocket, the player who broke may continue to hit balls into the pockets.

Rules Cont.

Any ball that enters a pocket AFTER the break is considered the player's ball category.

If a player lands a solid ball into the pocket, they must then finish landing all of the solid balls into pockets.

The same goes for the striped balls.
